A. Advancing School Relationships

This session focuses on developing strong reciprocal relationships with district and/or school staff and administrators - especially in rural districts or districts with a small number of military dependents. Dr. Keith Mispagel, Superintendent of the Fort Leavenworth School District in Kansas, and Helen Payne, Superintendent of North Hanover Schools in New Jersey will discuss how to connect and build rapport with your greatest asset to insure successful educational transitions, as well as trouble-shoot the most frequently presented concerns.

B. Education Transitions and the Compact

This session allows participants to have a candid discussion with the Commission's Executive Director, Cherise Imai and General Counsel, Rick Masters, on Compact provisions from a statutory perspective. They will also discuss the related challenges encountered during educational transitions, and how the Compact and/or National Office can assist. The session will also address best practices, necessary resources, and feedback on what works and what doesn't.

C. Advancing the Compact through Relationships

General Attendee participants will draft a proposal for EXCOM/Commission consideration to advance the compact through relationships and collaboration.
